Comments:

@@@I believe that there should be disclosure of these fees by either the bank or the merchant. I have got caught up in this mess not knowing there were fees and have overdrawn my account because of it. Not only having to pay high overdraft fees, but angry because no one bothered to take the time to advise me this is a common practice. The bank will not take responsibility and I am sure the vendors would not either. I believe that the consumer has a right to know these fees exist. Afterall we are talking about people's money and being a single parent, every dollar counts.
